Mayor Also Stops Cutting Off of Efficiency Staff Appropriation.

Mayor Mitchel has decided to veto the action of the Board of Aldermen in cutting the appropriation for free public school lectures from $148,000 to $74,000. The Aldermen, in reducing by half the amount to be expended for this popular educational aid to the which was inaugurated tigrough the efforts of The Evening World many years ago, alleged advancement of the interests of

The Mayor can see no economy in cutting the free lecture appropriation in two. He will send a message to the Board setting forth his views on the snatter. Inasmuch as the motion to slice the appropriation passed the Board by a bare majority, and a two-thirds vote will be necessary to pass it over the Mayor's veto, it is quite safe to say the free lecture course

The Mayor has also decided to weto the cancellation of the appropriation of $36,000 for the Efficiency Staff in the office of the Commissioner of Accounts. knows something about that office and the work of the Efficiency Staff and will insist that this branch of

Mr. Steuer is always very busy apparently when he is called upon to come down here. I shall suspend the alimony order until he is ready."

Mr. Tatum, who is a dry goods broker and has a pretentious home at Great Neck, charges his wife was unduly friendly with John Ottman, a steamship provision broker. In cross suit Mrs. Tatum names a young woman in Flatbush as the disturbing element in her life. Both co-respondents have denied all charges and will have counsel present.

By Marguerite Mooers Marshall. "It is the stars:

The stars above us govern our conditions." That is the theory of Miss Evangeline S. Adams, astrologist. It was also the theory of Napoleon and of an uncounted host of rulers and peoples reaching back into the impenetrable mists of the world's morning. To-day most of us are hitching our wagons to something nearer home than stars. Yet no one can say when the oldest science in existence may not be reacclaimed as

Frischi has just delivered himself of an exhaustive opinion to that effect, deciding in favor of Miss Adams a charge laid against her by the police. And even in this sceptical age many notable persons are interested in star logic. Miss Adams says that her patrons have included the late J. Pierpont Morgan and F. A. Heinze, force; Neptune, religion, fanaticism;

the Duchess of Manchester, Lady Paget, Jacob Stout, formerly President of Supreme Court Justice Crane, at the New York Stock Exchange, and any quantity of society women. I talked with Miss Adams to-day in her richly furnished, curlotrial of the suit of John C. Tatum for crammed apartment on the tenth floor of the Carnegie Studios. The carved of a woman's life, for example, in divorce from Mary Jane Tatum to go elephants, of ivory and ebony and bronze, standing everywhere, reminded Miss Adams herself is a businessilke person, with a square, frankly middle-saged face and figure. She has carried on her peculiar work for the many years. She dresses quietly but modishly, with no mummery of Oriental robes, and her hint is parted simply over a wide, intellectual fore-head. The only hint of her profession in her appearance is the odd jewel, earred with an Egyptian pharaon's head, which she wears on a strip of black weivet around her neck. She is a member of the New England Adams family, which has given two Presidents to the Nation.

"To you consider that you can really read the fate of a human being in the stars?" I asked.

"I can read what the fate MAY be," she replied. "No astrologic of the stars and the stars when the most of it." My role is similar to that of the westher prophet.
